Jacob Hill is an associate in the Business Litigation group at Carrington Coleman, with a particular emphasis on complex commercial, insurance, intellectual property, and employment litigation. Mr. Hill also has experience in antitrust, securities, intellectual property, commercial mortgage, and product liability litigation among other areas. He has experience in all phases of litigation and arbitration, including discovery, motion practice, depositions, mediations, pre-trial, and trial. Mr. Hill's representative cases range from small disputes to multi-billion dollar securities and patent cases.

Mr. Hill also has significant international experience, having spent two and a half years living and working in South Korea, and becoming immersed in the Korean language and culture. His international experience allows him to bring a unique understanding to the representation of international entities.
